Moving from vision to action for the sake of Grace and for the sake of this world

by Pastor Dave Lyle

Most of us aren't very familiar with the Book of Proverbs. It's not the book of the Bible in which we spend the most time. If you can recall anything at all from this ancient collection of wisdom sayings, it may well be this: "Where there is no vision, the people perish" (29:18 KJV). This is wisdom that is both simple and true. Said another way, if you don't know where you're going, how can you possibly hope to get there?

More than a year ago, the leadership of Grace discerned a new vision for this time, namely that we will be Together in Christ: To love, to grow, to serve. It's a good vision, and it has been influential in my own thinking about our future. If I could be so bold as to propose an amendment to the proverb above, it would be this: "Without action, the vision fades away." Vision is an important driver in our ministry, but without implementation, the vision remains little more than a nice set of propositions left to gather dust on the shelf.

As we enter 2017, we move toward deeper implementation of this vision for Grace. As we seek to better love, grow, and serve one another and this world in Jesus' name, the following questions present themselves:

- How do we better know and love one another through Jesus Christ?
- How do we better know and love God through Jesus Christ?
- How do we better know and love the world for the sake of Jesus Christ?

The first question addresses the "to love" aspect of our vision. This year we will be reforming the Fellowship Committee. The goal is emphatically not to create a "kitchen and potluck committee," but rather to begin exploring how to better enable people to develop meaningful, mutual relationships at Grace for the sake of sustaining one another in our lives as people of God. The second question, about knowing and loving God, addresses the vision "to grow." This is a matter of faith formation that goes beyond our wonderful educational offerings and points us toward a life of discipleship marked by the cross. The task is to create an overarching goal of lifelong learning for our members, from the youngest to the most seasoned.

The final question points us toward the "to serve" element in our vision. We have wonderful social and benevolence ministries, but not a great deal of cohesion or congregational ownership. The vision points us to enact a strong congregational sense of mission to the world through the work of our own hearts and hands.

I hope and trust that God will empower the people of Grace to move from vision to concrete implementation, for the sake of Grace and for the sake of this world. There is no doubt that the world needs the fellowship, discipleship, and service of God's people.

For many this seems especially true right now, as a concrete example of the need for the witness of God's people presents itself in the recent executive orders regarding immigration and refugees. It should be noted that this is not about being "political." It is not about the church aligning itself with or against a particular party or politician. It is, however, very much about loving, growing, and serving others in Jesus' name. Both the Old and New Testaments are straightforward on this issue.

In Leviticus, the command is clear:

The alien who resides with you shall be to you as the citizen among you; you shall love the alien as yourself, for you were aliens in the land of Egypt: I am the Lord your God. (Leviticus 19:34).

Free Indeed: Devotions for Lent 2017

The devotional "Free Indeed" takes you through Lent with daily readings from Martin Luther's Small Catechism, inviting you to reflect on the basics of Christian faith, within the observance of the 500th anniversary of the Reformation.

Each reading is accompanied by a color photo, a quote to ponder, reflection, and prayer. Pick up a free copy of this beautiful, full-color book at Grace on Sundays in February.

Lent begins on Ash Wednesday, March 1.

Grace Notes is published monthly by Grace Lutheran Church and School, 7300 Division St., River Forest, Ill. It is mailed to Grace members, parents of students at Grace School, and friends of the congregation. The newsletter is online at www.graceriverforest.org. This issue was mailed via U.S. Postal Service Bulk Mail on Friday, February 3, with the hope that it will arrive in your mailbox no later than February 10. Copies are also available at Grace.

Our Lord Jesus is equally clear:

You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself. (Luke 10:27).

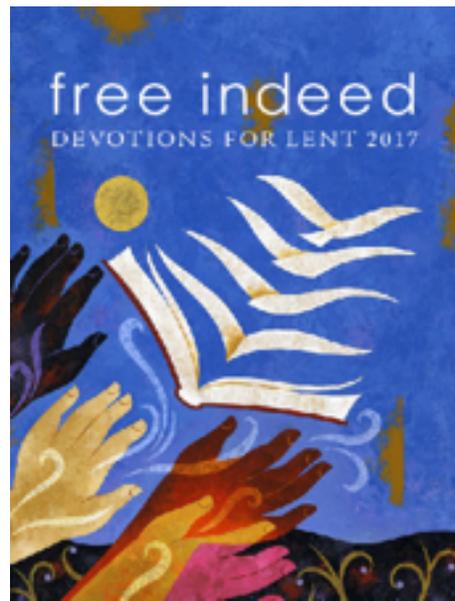

My prayer for Grace in these days is that we will continue to work with partners such as RefugeeOne in the important work of welcoming the stranger, especially those who are fleeing danger and hoping for a better life. This, after all, is the work of loving, growing, and serving the world for the sake of the gospel.

If you have interest in participating in any of these conversations about putting our vision into action, please let me know.

Annual Leadership Retreat

Members of Grace Church's many boards and committees are invited and encouraged to attend the annual leadership retreat on Saturday, February 25, from 8:30 – 11:30 a.m. in Fellowship Hall. It's an opportunity to collaborate on plans for ministry in the coming year. Continental breakfast will be available.

Deadlines and submissions. The February issue of Grace Notes will be mailed on Friday, March 3. The deadline for copy is Wednesday, February 22; the issue covers events through early April. Please send news to ggotsch@graceriverforest.org. Please limit your submissions to news relating to Grace Lutheran Church and School, its mission, ministries, and the benevolences the congregation supports. Articles should be no longer than 500 words. Submissions may be edited for length, clarity, and relevance.

Learn about many ways to serve others at the annual Benevolence Fair

Grace Church currently designates a tithing (10 percent) of members' annual contributions to support 34 partner ministries beyond our doors. The Benevolence Committee invites you to learn more about these ministries at the Benevolence Fair on Sunday morning, March 5, at 9:45 a.m. in Fellowship Hall. Representatives from many of these organizations will be available to talk with you about their mission and ministry. There will be colorful displays, booklets, pamphlets, and, of course, coffee. The 2017 revision of the Benevolence Handbook will also be available at the fair.

Grace's Benevolence Committee is made up of six elected congregation members: Susan Allen and Carolyn Becker, co-chairs, Stewart Clarke, Lois Harb, David Kluge, and Julie Lehmann, with Pastor Dave Wegner serving on the committee ex officio. The committee also administers gifts from the Kingdom Frontiers fund, an endowment established many years ago in memory of Otto Geiseman, pastor at Grace from 1922 to 1962. In the fall of 2016 Kingdom Frontiers contributed $2,000 to support ELCA ministries in South Sudan.

In addition to sending checks to these organizations, we pray for their work on Sunday mornings during our worship services. Grace members support many of these organizations with gifts of time and talent as well as money. Come to the Benevolence Fair and discover how you can become more involved with many local organizations.

Why History and Historical Thinking Are Vital to Christian Discipleship

Pauline Viviano, Associate Professor Emerita, Theology, Loyola University

What does the Bible have to say about women to women?

Feminist interpretation of the Bible has broadened over the years to include Latin American, African, and Asian women, who have brought the distinctive insight of their post-colonial cultures to biblical interpretation. This series includes three classes:

February 5: “It’s All Interpretation.” Where we have come from in the interpretation of the Bible and why it matters that we are here now.

February 12: “Why Do the Women of the Bible Always Get Blamed?” A look at the history of the treatment of women in the interpretation of the Bible February 19: “It’s All about Liberation.” The voices of Third World women in interpreting the Bible.

Sunday Bible Study

Led by Bob Jandeska in the conference room, the Bible study group meets every Sunday morning at 9:45 a.m. in the Conference Room on the lower level.

“Worship and Weekday Life” Connecting Sunday liturgy to daily living

Grace’s Pastor Emeritus, Dean Lueking, wrote about the different parts of our communion liturgy for Sunday worship folders in 2016. His comments have been collected into a booklet. Copies are available at the reception desk at Grace.

Pastor Lueking sums up the purpose of the booklet in a brief introduction:

Here are notes on the liturgy meant to help us better understand why we do what we do when we do it. ... Each comment will be brief, jargon-free, and bent toward connecting Sunday worship with weekday life in the world around us.

Do Low-Income Students Have Equal Access to Effective Teachers?

Eric Isenberg, Senior Researcher, Mathematica Policy Research

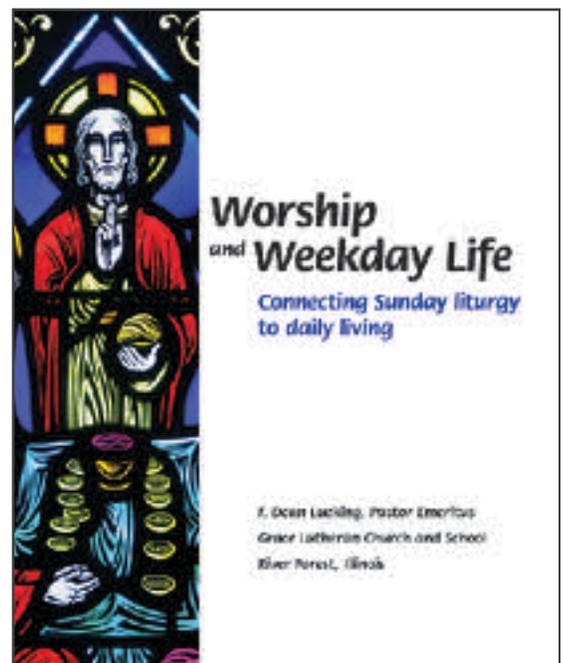

A recent federal study surprisingly shows that, despite a large student achievement gap, low-income students have teachers who are as effective as those of high-income students. This talk is given by the study's principal investigator (a Grace member) on the economic issues in American public education and what can be done to address them.

Jesus and the Renewal of Community Life

Ray Pickett, Professor, Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago

This two-part series focuses on Jesus’ Galilean ministry in its turbulent political context. The Gospels describe Jesus leading a prophetic renewal movement responding to adverse social and economic effects of Herod Antipas’ project of urbanization. In contrast to individualistic interpretations of Jesus’ ministry, we will explore how Jesus is restoring community life from the margins.

February 19 cantata looks ahead to Lenten themes

Herr Jesus Christ, wahr' Mensch und Gott (Lord Jesus Christ, true man and God, BWV 127) was composed for the last Sunday before Lent in 1725. It is based on an eight-stanza funeral chorale; Bach's music anticipates the Lenten season and the retelling of the Passion story on Good Friday. The orchestra includes two recorders as well as two oboes and a trumpet, which rings out to depict the final judgment.

The prelude to the service is a Telemann concerto for recorder, played by guest Lisette Kielson. Jan Rippentrop, Carlson Professor of Homiletics at the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago, is the homilist.

The pre-service music begins at 3:45 p.m. on Sunday, February 19, at Grace, with a preview lecture at 3 p.m. by Mark Peters of Trinity Christian College in the Seminar Room.

Lenten conversations about racism

Grace's Faith Perspectives Committee is organizing book discussion groups or a Lenten-season conversation about racism. Group meetings begin in a few weeks.

Here's more information.

A CONVERSATION ON RACISM

Why this? Why now?

“We, who are many, are one body in Christ, and individually we are members one of another,” says the Apostle Paul in Romans 12:5. Racism is brokenness within the body. The Lenten journey of repentance provides an appropriate framework for learning about the persistence of racism in America.

Where did this idea come from?

Members of the Faith Perspectives Team spoke with pastors and members of other churches who have opened similar conversations in their own congregations; they also met with representatives of the ELCA Metro Chicago Synod's Antiracism Task Force. The ELCA representatives suggested that the congregation center their conversation through a shared book discussion. Pastor Dave Lyle and Pastor Dave Wegner proposed that the conversation at Grace take the form of small discussion groups that meet throughout the season of Lent.

I don't know if I am comfortable with this. The church shouldn't be discussing this.

While the effects of racism may not be blatantly obvious in our own lives they are most certainly obvious in the lives of those who live mere miles from our own homes and church. But what might be even more daunting is the realization that a conversation on racism may challenge us to confront our own complacency, our passivity, and our acceptance of it. Holding these conversations within the context of our church community gives us the freedom and safety of acceptance, forgiveness, grace, love, and hope.

“Waking Up White is a wake-up call for white people who want to consciously contribute to racial justice rather than unconsciously perpetuate patterns of racism. With honesty and humility, Debby Irving shares her own story of transformation—a journey of opening herself to learning about the realities of racism and the unintended impacts of white privilege. By confronting her own fears and mistakes, she gleans many useful lessons and tips that can help move others from confusion and avoidance to constructive engagement, authentic connection and courageous action.” – Terry Keleher, Thought Leadership and Practice Specialist, Race Forward

How will the small groups work?

Groups will be comprised of 8-10 people and will meet five times for about 90 minutes for discussion. Participants will read sections of the text in preparation for discussion each week.

What will we be reading?

After considering several titles the Faith Perspective Team has chosen “Waking Up White, and Finding Myself in the Story of Race,” by Debby Irving. Irving is frank and unwavering in her writing while carefully choosing her words and reminding readers that she does not speak for anyone but herself. She writes:

You may find my degree of candor jarring. Please know that at the heart of this work is speaking the unspeakable. A general understanding in the world of racial healing holds that beliefs gather steam and hurt most when they are left to fester unidentified and unacknowledged in people's hearts and minds.

Again, the Lenten journey provides an important and helpful framework. The conversations in which those festering things are brought forward, named, and examined are surrounded by the promise of God's mercy and grace through the cross.

Debby Irving is a white person. Shouldn't we hear from someone of color?

This is just the first voice in our conversation. Following this initial study the Antiracism Task Force recommends adding additional resources and insights from authors of other races and experiences.

How do I sign up?

Faith Perspectives Team members will be in the Atrium on February 12, 19 and 26, helping participants choose a group that fits their schedule and passing out copies of the book.

What are the costs?

We have purchased 50 copies of the book through a Legacy of Grace grant request. After the 50 are claimed during signups, additional copies may be purchased through the church for $15.22, or you may purchase one elsewhere.

May I invite someone else, a non-Grace member perhaps?

Of course. If you know someone who would like to participate in one of the small groups, have them choose a group that meets on a day and time suitable for their schedule. Be sure their name gets added to the sign-up list so the group facilitators can expect them.

I can't make every group meeting.

By posting the days and times each group will meet we hope you will be able to choose a group with a schedule that works for you throughout the study. If you have to miss a meeting of your own group, you might wish to "visit" another group for the week with advanced notice to that group's facilitator.

I want to be a group facilitator.

Thank you! Please contact one of the Faith Perspectives Team members at the end of this document to let us know of your interest. We will ask you to do a few things right away:

- Pick a day of the week, time, and location for your group's meeting
- Commit to being present for each group meeting.
- Come to the Facilitator Training Session following 11 a.m. worship on February 19, 2017. Lunch will be provided. In that meeting we will focus on group management skills and hand out reading schedules and discussion questions.

As a facilitator, your role is not to be the expert. You are charged with convening the group, helping all group members participate to their comfort level, and ensuring all reflections are welcomed and heard.

What other ways will the topic of racism be addressed?

If you cannot join a small group for the book discussion, or aren't sure where you might be on your own processing journey, you can still be involved. We'll be sharing an Additional Resources page that will offer ways to be involved in the conversation. On Sunday mornings during Lent, our prayers will include language identifying and lifting up the brokenness that stems from racism.

What is going to happen after the book study?

On Sunday, April 23, all participants will gather for an evening potluck meal at the church. We will celebrate and give thanks for meaningful time together throughout the study, reflect on what we've learned, and begin to discern how God is calling us to continue addressing the issues and consequences of racism in our homes, workplaces, congregation, community, and country.

I still have some questions.

Excellent! Contact anyone from the list below and we will do our best to answer or find the answer to your question. Also keep your eyes on the Weekly Announcements for continued updates as Lent draws closer.

Church Vocations Scholarship

Through the Church Vocations Initiative, Grace Church provides support, encouragement, and financial assistance to members who wish to pursue a vocational ministry, either within the church or in the secular world. Anna Modrich is a recipient of a Vocations Scholarship for the 2016-17 school year. She is a junior at Concordia University Chicago this year, after two years of study at Concordia University Wisconsin. She shares this update about her first semester:

Living at home and going to school at Concordia Chicago has allowed me to become more involved with my faith at Grace where I grew up going to church. Since I have been home I have been a part of the youth mentor program. It has been a fun experience that I have learned a lot from. I hope to continue this program and grow to be a better mentor down the road and maintain connections with the 7th and 8th graders beyond the program. I appreciate the support I am receiving from Grace during my education and faith journey.

First Communion instruction

First communion classes for fourth grade students take place on Sunday mornings in Lent, beginning March 5 at 9:45 a.m. Children this age who already commune are invited to participate in the class along with their peers. Parents have received a letter with more information. Contact Children's Ministry Coordinator Julie Modrich with questions (708-366-6900 ext 229; jmodrich@graceriverforest.org).

Youth ministry book study begins on February 13

Join Pastor Lauren Wegner for a book study on "Sustainable Youth Ministry," by Mark DeVries. Our first meeting will take place Monday, Feb. 13, at 7 p.m. in the Youth Room. We will discuss the introduction and chapters 1-3. All are welcome! Please let Pastor Lauren know if you would like a book ordered for you (lwegner@graceriverforest.org).

Open our eyes to those with vision impairment

By Sue Ames, Parish Nurse

February is Low Vision Awareness Month. I am sure all of us have experiences with loved ones who have been affected by low vision, or we may be experiencing firsthand the challenges involved in navigating everyday life with impaired vision. I hope this article will provide information and resources to help support those struggling with low vision.

What is low vision?

As we age, our eyes age too. Many of these changes can be corrected with glasses or contact lens. However, if your eye doctor tells you that your vision cannot fully be corrected with ordinary prescription lenses, medical treatment or surgery and you still have some usable vision, you have what is called low vision. Having low vision means that even with regular glasses, contact lenses, medicine or surgery, people find everyday tasks, such as reading mail, shopping, preparing meals, and signing their name, difficult to do.

What causes low vision?

Low vision is usually caused by eye disease or health disorders, eye injuries, or birth defects. Common causes include:

- Age-related macular degeneration, which causes blurred or reduced central vision.
- Glaucoma — abnormally high pressure in the eye causing optic nerve damage.
- Diabetic retinopathy — damage to the blood vessels of retina (the light-sensitive tissue at the back of the eye) caused by diabetes.
- Retinitis pigmentosa — a genetic condition that causes retinal deterioration leading to vision loss.

Low vision affects 2.9 million Americans. It ranks behind only arthritis and heart disease as a reason for impaired daily functioning. The number of those affected is expected to increase 72% by 2030. Most people with low vision are 65 or older.

What can you do?

Keep your eyes healthy: Don't smoke. Wear sunglasses. Exercise and eat a healthy diet, and see your eye care provider regularly.

Learn about vision rehabilitation.

Vision rehabilitation helps people adapt to vision loss and maintain their quality of life. In addition to a primary eye care professional, the vision rehabilitation team may include occupational therapists, orientation and mobility instructors, low vision therapists, rehabilitation teachers, and adaptive technology specialists. These professionals can help people make the most of their vision and maintain their independence by teaching them how to move safely around the home, carry out daily living skills safely, use magnifiers and other adaptive devices, and find additional resources and support

Eye care providers say they would offer more low vision products and services if patients simply asked for them. Only 1.4 percent of Americans with visual impairment aged 18 and older use vision rehabilitation services, and only 22 percent of people aged 18 and older with visual impairments use visual adaptive equipment.

When to seek medical advice

Get emergency medical care if you have sudden changes in vision or injury to your eye. Urgent vision-related medical conditions include the sudden onset of:

- Severe eye pain or irritation.
- Vision loss or double vision.
- Eye floaters, flashes of light or halos around lights.
- Severe headache.
- Nausea or vomiting.
- Numbness or weakness on one side of the body.
- Confusion, dizziness or trouble talking.

See a specialist in vision problems (an optometrist or ophthalmologist) if you experience any vision problems that impair your ability to read or write comfortably, drive safely, or participate in everyday activities.

Recycle your used glasses

The Lions Club International's Recycle for Sight program distributes used eyeglasses to people who need them. Bring your used but usable glasses and sunglasses, prescription and non-prescription, to the collection box at the Health Cabinet table in the atrium on February 19. Glasses will be donated to the Lions Club of Oak Park/River Forest for recycling.

Thank you for supporting the benefit for the Center for Christian Education in Martin, Slovakia

Nearly 100 people attended Grace Church's benefit evening for the Center for Christian Education (CCE) on January 28. Held in Fellowship Hall, the event featured an authentic Slovak dinner of roast pork with all the trimmings, plus a presentation from leaders of CCE and a raffle of exciting prizes.

Entertainment was provided by members of Veselica, a Chicago dance troupe of Slovak-American children who performed traditional songs and dances. Proceeds benefit the continued renovation of CCE's Lutheran High School.

In July 2017, a mission team from Grace will again travel to Slovakia and teach CCE's Vacation Bible School. Last year's VBS program attracted 200 children ages 4 through rising fourth-graders. Some spaces for the 2017 trip are still available. Interested? Contact Julie Modrich, Ministry Coordinator (708-366-6900, ext. 229; jmodrich@graceriverforest.org).

Dear Grace members,

Thank you for the overwhelming grace, love and support your cards provided my wife, Michelle, and me. We laughed at first and thought our mailman may have been hoarding our mail, but were welcomed by a wonderful surprise. Prayers and blessings to everyone at Grace from Kris and Michelle Grahnke.
